CANA Construction

CANA is an Alberta based Construction Management firm with over 71 years of experience in the construction industry. CANA's mission is to provide quality construction services, on time and on budget, using a think straight, talk straight, do it once attitude with no surprises.

Originating in Calgary, Alberta, in 1942, CANA has been owned and managed by the Simpson Family for 51 of the 71 years of corporate history. Albertans turn to CANA when unique one-of-a-kind projects are required. These projects can be seen from almost every vantage point in the city. The original Jubilee Auditorium, TELUS Convention Centre, Scotiabank Saddledome, Winsport Athletic and Ice Complex, Canada's Sports Hall of Fame, McMahon Stadium, Taylor Family Digital Library, EPCOR Centre for the Performing Arts, TELUS Spark, and the Glenbow Museum are among just some of those projects. CANA takes pride in its ability to develop unique design and construction solutions to meet project demands. CANA takes pride in its reputation for delivering projects on time and on budget; this reputation has been cultivated over the past 71 years, leading CANA to successfully complete over $5B worth of Construction Management projects since 1967.

On the National Music Centre project CANA is acting as the Construction Manager and will oversee and coordinate all trade contractors in the provision of construction services. CANA has also carried out an intensive design-assist role with support from its Construction Management Sub-Contractors. CANA has worked with the design team to add value in terms of design, budget and schedule, while maintaining the one-of-a-kind design intent that will make this building a landmark building in Calgary for generations to come.

The Canadian Construction Association has endorsed this project as a Gold Seal Certified Project. The Gold Seal Project initiative promotes and recognizes the highest level of Construction Management skills, continuing education and professional development within the Canadian construction industry. CANA has a long and well recognized history of promoting Construction Management excellence and professionalism and looks forward to implementing these processes on the National Music Centre project.

CANA is proud to be involved on the National Music Centre; and to be providing its construction expertise on this meaningful project!
